TIM GORMAN PROMOTED TO VICE PRESIDENT – ARKANSAS MARKET AREA

Tim Gorman has been promoted to vice president of RGI's Arkansas market area.

Tim has over 20 years of experience in the construction and aggregate industries. In 1991, Tim joined RGI as an assistant project engineer in the company's bridge division in Knoxville, Tennessee. Over the next several years, Tim worked his way through different management position such as engineer, construction estimator and area controller. In 1999, Tim relocated to Bloomington, Indiana, to become the manager of RGI's central Indiana construction teams. Since 2002, Tim has managed RGI's construction and asphalt operations in southeast Tennessee, while simultaneously serving in various management development roles supervising mining and quality control.

Central division vice president and general manager Darin Matson said, "We are excited about Tim's new position. Our customers in Arkansas deserve the best this company has to offer, and Tim certainly fits the bill. His leadership skills and wealth of knowledge about this industry have made him a valued asset to the company. We have every confidence in him."

Tim holds a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of Tennessee and a master's degree in civil engineering-construction management from Vanderbilt University.

Celebrating its 100th year in 2008, Rogers Group Inc. provides quality construction aggregates and road construction services in five states.
